Comments and Suggestions to the Author(s):

The work is interesting and definitely provides new insights on the development in the agricultural sector of Uzbekistan. My main comments are the following:

1. The English is correct and understandable, but needs some improvement. I suggest that the authors check the grammar once more or ideally provide to their colleagues for corrections.
2. One of the comments related to introduction of a short overview of the results of a study on price volatility in Uzbekistan.
3. I also recommend including the World Bank paper on Value chain development in Uzbekistan.
4. For both comments I indicate the literature for citation.
5. Finally, the table which is used for the Results description should be included into the manuscript.

Given these few comments I recommend to accept the paper under minor revision. I believe the revision can be done within a short time period.

Comments and Suggestions to the Editors Only:

The paper falls within the scope of ESJ and contains useful ideas that can be used for further studies on value chain and export development in the Central Asian region. Furthermore, the paper can contribute to current literature addressing these topics. The English is correct and understandable, but needs some improvement. This paper could be usefully revised using the comments provided here. Particularly Introduction and Discussions require improvement based on the following:

- introduce a short overview of the results of a study on price volatility in Uzbekistan.
- include the World Bank paper on Value chain development in Uzbekistan.
- include the table which is used for the Results description.

Given these few comments I recommend to accept the paper under minor revision. I believe the revision can be done within a short time period.
